Research Report Style

Report should cover all significant experiments. Since I often combine work from two or more co-workers in publications, it is essential that experimental sections be written in a common style. Please consult recent papers from our group and carefully study the representative experimental procedure and comments that can be found in this document.

Reports should be organized in the following way:

- Page 1 Your name, date
- Page 2 Table of Contents (as detailed as possible)
- Page 3 Brief Results and Discussion Sections in typical JOC format.
 Collect as much data in tables as possible
- Page n Detailed Experimental in our format
- Page m Full Reference citations in ACS format (consult the ACS Style Guide for details)
